Rev. Howes,

I'm wondering if you could give me some guidance in proceeding with a complaint against an action of the Session of Immanuel Presbyterian Church.

I had filed the complaint with the session at the beginning of last month, and recently received their rejection of the complaint. I was a bit surprised that they decided to send the complaint and their response on to you, as I was not then sure whether I was even going to pursue the issue to Presbytery.

Anyway, my wife and I have decided that we would, in fact, like to pursue the issue, and we're wondering what the best way is to proceed. I can send the complaint to you via registered mail, in order to assure that everything was completed within the required time limits, but I think registered mail is needlessly painful. Would it be acceptable to send the documents to you as an email attachment?
